Dear Mr. Doer:

Once upon a time I was a Winnipeg boy, and I held my head high, but no more. Your government's policies have made me ashamed to be a Manitoban. I have been writing to my friends and relatives who still live there, encouraging them to move to another province, any other province. Barring that, my other plan is to encourage as many people as possible to move to Manitoba before the next general election just so they can vote against you and your party. I sincerely pity the poor people who have to suffer under the yoke of your tyranny.

You and all your lackeys can rot in hell as far as I am concerned.

So there,

Garth Johnson

P.S. Could you send me an autographed picture for my hall of villains?
