Dear Starchild:

I have examined maps of the city with the greatest care, but I have not been able to find the Rue 'd Auseil. There is no mention in the public record for the last 30 years of a street with that name, let alone the house that you described. I traveled on foot through the area to see if any landmark from your story seemed familiar. I saw nothing, but found the crowd in that part of town close-lipped and menacing. Are you sure your memory is serving you correctly? Maybe you were in a different neighbourhood, or even a different city... it was quite a while ago now. Anyway, if you can provide me with any more information, I will continue the task of searching out that address, and the people who lived there.

Yours,

Garth Johnson

P.S. Could you send me a picture I could show to people to see if they remember you?
