Dear Mr. Walker:

You are one of my favorite actors, and the Dirty Dozen is my all-time favorite movie. It reminded my prison years (but enough on that). What was it like to meet Telly Savalas? Was he just like he was in those Diner's Club commercials? I heard that Lee Marvin was actually really short, kinda like Sylvester Stallone; is it true? In the movie, they never show you dying. You just disappear. Did your big death scene end up on the cutting room floor?

I'm sorry not to see you acting too much these days. I hope you haven't retired. I always hoped to see you in more movies. The Chief Bromden role in One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest should have been yours. Them's the breaks, I guess.

Yours,

Garth Johnson

P.S. Could you please send me a picture, signed to "Garth and the Gang at Thursday's"?
